It is hard to think of an Indian snack that is not fried. However, we need to be aware of what happens to oil when it is heated. When oil begins to smoke, it is a good indicator that it has been heated too much. At this temperature, chemical changes begin to take place, which has many health risks. Of course, this is tricky. If the oil is not hot enough, then more of it is absorbed, and the resultant product is quite soggy and unfit to eat.

Further, prolonged heating of oil at high temperature, i.e. at its smoking point, leads to its degradation. A substance called acrolein is formed which can irritate the stomach lining. The oil that has decomposed to acrolein is dark and viscous. Normally this does not happen when food is fried at home. But as oil is expensive we are not willing to put it down the drain after having used it only once. The common tendency is to set aside any oil that is left over to use another time. And repeated use of the same oil guarantees the formation of acrolein with all its undesirable effects.

In fact, some experts suggest that oil should not be held at its smoking temperature for more than 15 minutes at a time. This time span, as everyone knows, is hardly sufficient to prepare food for even a small family of four. Sadly, olive and corn oils are not widely available in our markets. Both these oils can be heated to higher temperatures before they start smoking.

Even heart-friendly oils, like those made from sunflower, are also not spared from these effects. Another problem arises when oil is stored under less than satisfactory conditions. If the oil is not stored in an airtight container which, additionally, allows light to pass through, then it will deteriorate further because of the effect of oxygen and light on the oil.

By and large, these undesirable effects result when food is deep-fried. So, eat deep-fried food occasionally. This does not mean we can no longer enjoy the flavour and palatability of fried foods. Some food like tikkis lend themselves to both deep and shallow frying. Since every batch of frying requires fresh oil, there is no problem with leftover oil.

The practice of heating small amounts of mustard, black grams chillies and the like in a little oil, before they are added to vegetables and curries, is called tempering. Tempering is not meant solely for flavour but has a nutritional benefit as well.

- (a) Complete the sentence by choosing an appropriate option.

_____ is a substance that irritates the stomach lining.

- i. Acrolein
 - ii. Sunflower oil
 - iii. Acetic acid
 - iv. Corn oil
- (b) Comment on the degradation of oil due to prolonged heating as referred to in paragraph two.
- (c) List any two ways one can opt to delish the flavours of deep-fried foods.
(Clue: Think about the alternatives to curb its harmful effects)
- (d) Select the option that conveys the opposite of ‘undesirable’, from words used in paragraph five.
- i. flavour
 - ii. tempering
 - iii. palatability
 - iv. occasional
- (e) What is the other consequence of improper storage of oil?
- i. Oxidisation of Oil when left in open/improperly stored
 - ii. Not storing it in air-tight container reduces freshness
 - iii. Oil used for Deep-frying is super unhealthy
 - iv. Light passes through it as Oil is transparent
- (f) Based on your understanding of paragraph six, list one major reason as to why tempering is done.
- (g) Why do we have a tendency of reusing the oil once used?
- (h) Complete the given sentence with an appropriate inference, with respect to the following:
According to the writer, a few healthy oils that can be heated to higher temperatures before they start smoking are not widely available in our markets. These oils are _____.
- (i) What happens to oil when it is heated?
- i. It begins to smoke
 - ii. Chemical Changes start taking place
 - iii. If not heated enough, more of it is absorbed
 - iv. Over-heating leads to its degradation

2. Read the text carefully and answer the questions:

I. Over the last five years, more companies have been actively looking for intern profiles, according to a 2018-19 survey by an online internship and training platform. This survey reveals that India had 80% more internship applications — with 2.2 million applications received in 2018 compared to 1.27 million in the year before. The trend was partly due to more industries looking to have fresh minds and ideas on existing projects for better productivity. What was originally seen as a western concept, getting an internship before plunging into the job market, is fast gaining momentum at Indian workplaces.

II. According to the survey data, India’s National Capital Region has been the top provider of internships, with a total of 35% internship opportunities, followed by Mumbai and Bengaluru at 20% and 15%, respectively. This includes opportunities in startups, MNCs and even government entities. The survey also revealed popular fields to find internships in (Fig 1). There has been growing awareness among the students about the intern profiles sought by hiring companies that often look for people with real-time experience in management than B- school masters.

Internship Trends 2018

III. The stipend has been an important factor influencing the choice of internships. The survey data reveals that the average stipend offered to interns was recorded as Rs. 7000 while the maximum stipend went up to Rs. 85,000. According to statistics, a greater number of people considered virtual internships than in-office internships. Virtual internships got three times more applications than in-office, since a large chunk of students were the ones already enrolled in various courses, or preferred working from home.

IV. Internship portals have sprung up in the last three to four years and many of them already report healthy traffic per month. Reports suggest that on an average, an internship portal company has around 200,000-plus students and some 8,000 companies registered on it. It gets around two lakh visits online every month. The Managing Director of a leading executive search firm says that though these web platforms are working as an effective bridge between the industry and students. Since there is a high likelihood that interns will leave the company, most reputable companies are still apprehensive about hiring too many interns.

- (a) Does the following statement agree with the information given in paragraph III?

The survey statistics mention the average stipend, indicating that most interns were offered the highest stipend of Rs.85,000.

Select from the following:

True - if the statement agrees with the information

False - if the statement contradicts the information

Not Given - if there is no information on this

- (b) Do you think that there were lesser companies searching for intern profiles earlier, as compared to those in the recent five years?
- (c) Choose the main idea of the paragraph that is likely to come before paragraph I.
- Process of registering for internships
 - Dos and Don'ts for an internship interview
 - Knowing more about internships
 - Startups and internships
- (d) Complete the sentence based on the following statement.
- Virtual internships attracted three times more applications than in-office.
- We can say this because_____.
- (e) Based on your reading of paragraphs II-III, select the appropriate counter-argument to the given argument.

ARGUMENT: I don't think you'll be considered for an internship just because you've been the student editor and Head of the Student Council.

- a. I know that my stipend might be on the lower side but I think that it's a good 'earn while you learn' opportunity.
 - b. I think I have a fair chance because I'm applying for a virtual position than an in-office one.
 - c. Lot of metro-cities have a good percentage of positions open and I think I should definitely take a chance.
 - d. I have real-time experience in managing a team and many companies consider it more meritorious than a degree in Management.
- (f) The phrase 'healthy traffic' in paragraph IV refers to the _____
- A. monthly data about the health of internship applicants.
 - B. updates from portals about health and road safety.
 - C. statistics about adherence to traffic rules by the portals.
 - D. sizeable number of visitors to the portal per month.
- (g) The majority of established companies are still hesitant to hire too many interns.
Give one reason why the established companies are reluctant.
- (h) Complete the given sentence by selecting the most appropriate option with reference to Fig 1.
Management internships' _____ is more than twice that of Media.
- A. importance
 - B. application
 - C. popularity
 - D. privacy
